What You'll Need:

- Crayons, markers, or colored pencils
- A curious mind and your favorite colors!

Turn the Pages Slowly:

Look at each picture. You'll see the sun, clouds, Earth, and other things that help explain the greenhouse effect.

Pick a Page to Start:

Choose any picture that you want to color first. You can go in order or around—it's your choice!

Think About Earth Colors:

What color is the sky? What about the sun, trees, or the Earth? Use your imagination or look outside for ideas!

Start Coloring:

- Color the Earth, the sun, clouds, and anything else in the picture.
- Try to stay in the lines, but it's okay to be creative too!

Add Your Own Touch:

You can draw more trees, flowers, or happy animals on the pages. Want to add hearts around the Earth to show love? Go for it!

Share Your Artwork:

When you finish a page, show it to your family or friends. Teach them what you learned about the Earth and the greenhouse effect!
